

“To serve is beautiful, but only if it is done with joy and a whole heart and a free mind.”

Pearl Buck 1967

Kitty Stockton is in every way the spirit of this quotation. My wife and I had the supreme pleasure of connecting with Kitty as we were about to relocate from our home in New York to Fearington Village in North Carolina. Kitty served as our realtor in North Carolina and what a remarkable professional she was for us!

From the first moment of meeting, we knew she was our agent. Her qualities of honesty, competency, and organization were immediately transparent to us. Kitty was personable, compassionate, and assured us immediately that our anxieties would be assuaged. She was indeed correct. Kitty went to work for us as if we were a part of her family.

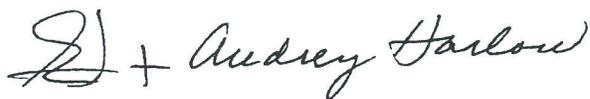

Of all these attributes, the one that impressed us the most was her practice of full disclosure. Kitty let us know what was involved in the relationship between realtor and the client. We were made aware of the parameters of the contract and what we could expect from her. This was true throughout the entire sale process. She would walk us through the contracts, the documents, the covenants, and all other legal documents that we had to initial or sign. There were to be no surprises for us along the way and we are very grateful for her good counsel.

When it came time to look for homes we were amazed at how well Kitty did her research. She knew her area and she knew Fearington Village. We saw a range of homes and finally found a marvel of a home that was to become ours.

When we left to return to New York, this professional served as our ambassador in North Carolina. She virtually coached us through the bidding process, carefully doing her research as to comparable sales in the area. She arranged for an inspection, an appraisal, contacted an attorney, and arranged for a closing date. No stone was left unturned. Back in New York, we were kept informed at every moment and never once experienced a feeling of disconnection.

To say that Kitty worked for us one hundred percent would be an extreme understatement. Her talents, expertise and professionalism went beyond anything we had ever experienced. She literally carried us on her back in North Carolina. For that we will be eternally grateful.

Whoever should be so lucky as to have Kitty Stockton as their realtor will be well served and represented. It is with great joy, gratitude, and satisfaction that we write this letter of praise and recommendation for a realtor of extraordinary magnitude and professionalism!
